The final sum during Saturday evening's fundraising gala "Together for the children of the world" in SVT landed at just over SEK 72 million after the charity organization Akelius Foundation doubled the amount collected.

That is SEK 53 million more than last year.

"It's fantastic to see such a huge commitment to children's rights. This will help a lot of children around the world," says Kristina Henschen, general secretary at Radiohjälpen where the money goes, according to a press release.

The collection goes on all year, but has been stepped up during the past week.
