In the "Gornje Prekounje - Ripač" school, the Akelius project, which enables the learning of foreign languages through the Akelius application, has been actively contributing to the education of students for several years. Children are more relaxed in class, learn more easily, and learning has become more fun for them.

The German language teacher, Nihada Kahrić, held a demonstration lesson that was observed by representatives of schools that also participate in the Akelius project, as well as those that have just started using this platform this school year.

Save the Children organization provides support and assistance in these classes, while UNICEF provides technical support in the form of equipment.

In the attached pictures, you can see what a German language lesson looks like with the help of the Akelius digital platform.
